Loss of the function of the median nerve results in the "hand of benediction" a condition in which index and middle fingers are extended, with the ring and small fingers flexed when the patient is asked to make a fist and an "ape hand" MP joint extended, PIP and DIP joints flexed due to longstanding injury with atrophy of the thenar muscles Figure The ulnar nerve, which innervates all the other intrinsic hand muscles not noted above, enters the hand anterior to the flexor retinaculum and medial to the ulnar artery. We will first report on these, providing examples, before turning to From The Spectator which sit less neatly in the framework, but which resonate with other work on reminiscence and life review.
