Rhineland Center 2nd floor Join us for a coffee hour in the Exhibit Hall. Students are more likely to feel connected to school if they 1 believe that they are treated fairly, 2 feel safe, and 3 believe that teachers are supportive. Students who think that their teachers are supportive of them are less likely to drink alcohol and are more likely to wear seat belts and bicycle helmets than are students who think that their teachers are not supportive. School personnel can work together with students and families to create a school climate that is supportive and productive for all students. Schools also can identify components of the school climate e.
